Chapter 1 by Darkforest

It was supposed to be a normal night. I was supposed to be on a normal date with a normal boy. It was calm and it was blissful, but, I never thought this would happen.

We were walking down a fairly large train tunnel to watch the trains come by. Everything was fine, I was happy to be out of the house and away from stress. That was until he shoved me against a wall and started carving my face. All I remember was him thrusting something sharp into my eyes. I couldn't see and I was screaming, but he didn't care, he was too busy removing my face and mumbling about how I didn't deserve it.

Now i'm blind and mutilated sitting in a room being questioned on what happened.
There is just one problem. I cant remember what happened after he blinded me.

Chapter 2 by Vega Venice

I remember being thrown to the ground, For I could feel the ground bellow me bust against my head. I was screaming and scratching at my face. I could feel him stand above me his breath reaking havict over my skin. It smelt of old Tabasco.

He whispered in my ear I began to struggle less,

"Isn't that better, Princess?" And then I was out like a light. He must have slammed my head against the wall, because the next thing I remember was waking up in someone else's bed.

Chapter 3 by Darkforest

It was a hospital bed. I didn't understand what was going on at the time, my head just hurt so bad. Memories came here and there, but they were extremely foggy.

A nurse would enter my room and check on me periodically.

Though I couldn't see her, I could still tell when she was in the room, her loud footsteps made it hard not to. I would often feel my face to make sure I was blind and just wasn't covered in bandages. After several hours to myself the nurse came back to check on me.

"Why can't I see," I croaked.

I heard her sigh on the left side of me.

"You don't remember?" she replied.

"No"

"I will go get your parents,"

"Why aren't they here with me?" I asked while shifting in my bed.

I winced and felt excruciating pain in my arms and face.

"Don't move darling, just rest," she spoke softly "Your parents have been with you all day they just went down to go get dinner. I'll fetch them for you"

She left me alone in the room and I slowly pulled my hand up to my face. It was ruined.

I turned to my side and a single tear slid down my face.

Chapter 4 by Brandy Meeks

I can't believe it. I really can't believe I decided to leave the introverted comfort of my home to meet up with a guy who stole my eyesight. 'There goes my dream of being a photographer.' I think to myself as my parents walk into my room.

"oh, Sweetheart, you're finally awake!" My mother cries out and rushes up to hug me, but hesitates. She then gingerly wraps her arms around me, afraid I'll break. It's only a minor

A sniffle. More clearly, she says, "No, It's all my fault. I should have told you no, but instead I encouraged it. I just wanted you to get out a little more."

Chapter 5 by adware

"And..." My father came in, with a wavering booming sob. "I should have told that bastard to have you back by ten."

"I don't think that would have changed anything." I said, "Honestly Dad."

"I'm so sorry we weren't here when you woke up". My mom continued. I hated that she beat herself up so much.

"Guys please-- can we just-- I'll be ok, just be with me. I'm not ready to face all this yet. Not for a while."

"Oh of course. Dave, stop worrying our daughter."

"Sorry, sorry. We love you so much honey."

"I know dad."

"And I know you don't want to talk about it now, but I've already talked to some therapists who have dealt with-- uh... traumatic..."

"Yeah. Ok, thanks."

"I think it will help a lot."

"The last thing she needs is more strangers, are you crazy? All she needs is us. She needs her parents."

"You're right, sorry, you're right."

"Guys!"

"I can't eat mom, not like this."

"You have to eat sweetie." My mother begged. I nodded, unsure of how I was going to keep this promise-- my stomach felt useless til death."

The nurse was pushing a cart around, or so I could discern through my ears. He picked up a tray and-- he?

"Hey-- did you guys get me something Mexican?" I asked.

"No we got you some soup, did you want Mexican? We can get you Mexican. Let's get you Mexican. Dave get the menu-- Sorry sir, could we send this back and change our order? Could we..."

"No Mom it's fine, it's just..."

The stench of tabasco was drenching the room.

"You had a question for me madam?" Said his voice.

Chapter 6 by a bundle of tantrums (inactive)

I inhaled slowly, remembering the smell.

"Y-you... who... why"

My parents both froze at the sound of my voice.

I heard their backs turn and spot the man.

I heard my dad get up,
and then nothing.

The faint sound of someone saying,

"Fake parents... fake eye blindness... bandages need to be taken off. Must move to another location... she's awake!"

A man.

No the man.

Was standing over me in a white doctors vest.

Chapter 7 by TORNADO DS

" who are you all??? and where am I?" I said that - or I scream it - and tried to take the bandages off when he stopped me and said "EASYYY!!!!.... or I'll make you blind for real this time" the same stench full my head what they want from me..."why you are hurting me like this I've done nothing wrong" I didn't realize that I'm crying my words out until I heard his laughing voice " I didn't do anything wrong.... I am innocent.... what do you want from me... always the same fucking words" after that, he leaned over to me to say in a very soft voice" beauty....you are accused of being beautiful....that's all"
